SAYS PLEAS OF GUILTY WERE MADE UNDER FEAR

Hopes to Obtain Ruling Setting Aside Sentencing of Defendants.

Major Samuel A. King, the Salt Lake Attorney, returned to Salt Lake yesterday after a month spent in Basin, Wyo., where he appeared as attorney for several Wyoming cattlemen who had been convicted of murdering three sheepmen who were alleged to have been trespassing on the rang of the cattlemen. Major King secured a writ which reopened the cases. Later the writ and the proceedings were quashed, whereupon Major King appealed to the supreme court of Wyoming. The appeal is now pending in the supreme court peal is now pending in the supreme court.

Seven cattlemen, Herbert Brink, George Saban, M. A. Alevander, Edward Eaton, Thomas Dixon, Albert A. Keyes and Joseph Ferris were arrested on the charge of murdering Joseph Alexander, Joseph Emge and Jules Lazier on April 2, 1909, in what is known as the "sheep and cattlemen's war."

Pending the trial of the suspects feeling ran high in Basin. Threats of lynching and murder were common and the section of the state was thrown into a turmoil. The trouble became such that Governor Brooks of Wyoming ordered out a portion of the National Guard and kept the troops at Basin during the greater part of the sunner and fall of 1909.

Pleas of Guilty.

Pleas of Guilty.

All of the accused cattlemen were indicted by the grand jury for murder in the first degree. Later these indictments were set aside because of irregularities. Information charging the same offense was filed against the prisoners and Herbert Brink was conprisoners and Herbert Brink was convicted of murder in the first degree. The others then pleaded guilty to murder in the second degree. On November 13, 1909, Brink was sentenced to life imprisonment; Saban and Alexander were given indeterminate sentences of from twenty to twenty-six years; Eaton and Dixon were given indeterminate sentences of from three to five years; while Keyes and Ferris turned state's evidence and the cases against

Associated with Major King in the appeal to the supreme court is W. E. Mullin, former attorney general of Mullin, former attorney general of Mullin, former accession of Mulli Mullin, former attorney general of Wyoming and Republican candidate for governor of Wyoming last fall.

Major King is enthusiastic over the growth of Big Horn county, of which Basin is the county seat. He said that it was the best county in Wyoming and that it was one of the best irrigation districts of the west. Several former Utah people are now living in building, but the proprietors of the buffet did better and made it the finest in America.

Leading from the main lobby of the Kearns building handsome stained glass doors, bound in heavy brass, open into the single room which the buffet occu-pies. This appears to be more of an art gallery than anything else. The rays of sunlight coming from the rear are softened and transformed by a beautiful art window, represent-ative of the rising sun. The art win-dow is semi-circular in shape and occupies the entire rear of the upper part of the room. In front of the window is a balcony projecting over the office. The glorious tints of the morning are reflected in the ceiling decorations, with the delicate shadings in the paint ing representative of the sky at va-rious periods of the day until it blends gradually into the primrose evening. Each ceiling panel has as a center-piece an artistic grouping of female

On either side of the upper half of the wall are a series of cherub groups exquisitely done in alto-relievo. One H. Perry Robinson, special commissioner of the London Times to investigate the Mormon question in Utah, arrived in the city yesterday. Mr. Robinson has been the representative of the paper in Canada for some time past, but was in Washington D. C., at the time of the recent anti-Mormon riot in England, and his paper wired him to come to Utah and make a thorough investigation of the subject.

Mr. Robinson declines to be interviewed on the ground that it would be a breach of ethics for him to talk at this time. He expects to be in Utah about a month.
